Yona Hannah – Founder of Yona Atelier Distribution & Co.

Hailing from Rochester, Yona Hannah is a multifaceted creative entrepreneur, film producer, and cultural curator dedicated to amplifying independent voices across film, music, and media.

As the founder of Yona Atelier Distribution & Co., she has built a platform focused on bridging the gap between underground talent and real industry opportunities. Her work is rooted in ownership, storytelling, and creating lanes for creatives to thrive without compromise.

Yona's impact extends into film, where she has already produced multiple independent projects, including The Swerve Way and I Got You Forever, showcasing her ability to bring authentic, community-driven stories to life. She is currently working on the highly anticipated Return of the Wave documentary centered around Max B—a project that further solidifies her presence at the intersection of hip-hop culture and visual storytelling.

Beyond production, Yona continues to curate live experiences, artist showcases, and media opportunities that give emerging talent real visibility. Her brand, Yona Atelier, is not just a company—it's a growing cultural platform designed to empower the next generation of creatives.

Her journey is also deeply personal. Alongside her brother, Kenneth "Skroll" Paige, Yona's work reflects a shared commitment to creativity, resilience, and building something that represents where they come from and where they're going.

With a sharp eye for talent and a relentless drive to create opportunity, Yona Hannah is steadily positioning herself as a force behind the scenes—shaping culture, telling stories, and opening doors for others to follow.
